The Graphic The Sun, The Telegraph, The Telegram, The Tribe Graphic, The Sun, The Advertiser, The Independent, The Journal, The Republican, The Bulletin.

MEMBER ASSOCIATED PRESS AND AMER. NEWSP. PUBLISHERS' ASSOC.

Dedicated to the service of the people, that no good cause shall lack a champion, and that evil shall not thrive unopposed.

The Daily Herald is issued six days a week and the Weekly Herald is published every Thursday, at El Paso, Pexas; and the Sunday Mall Edition is also sent to Weekly Subscribers.

TELEPHONES.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

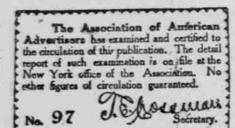

Daily Herald, per month, 60c; per rear, $7. Weekly Herald, per year, $2. The Daily Herald is delivered by carriers in El Paso, East El Paso, For: Blian and Towne, Texas, and Cludad Junrez, Mexico, at 60 cents a month.

A subscriber destring the address on his paper changed will please state in his communication both the old and the new address.

COMPLAINTS.

Subscribers falling to get The Herald prompily should call at the office of telephone No. 115 before 6:20 p. m. All complaints will receive prompt atten-

GUARANTEED CIRCULATION. The Herald bases all advertising contracts on a guarantee of nore than twice the circuistion of any other El Pase, Arizona New Mexico or west Texas paother El per. Daily average exceeding 10,000.

ELING AGENTS. Persons solicited to subscribe for The Herald should beware of imposters and should not pay money to anyone unless he can show that he is legally authorized by the El

Come and See, Anyhow

NEXT WEEK is the week of the big consolidated trade excursions into El Paso from the surrounding region, under the auspices of the merchants of El Paso. Arrangements have been made for refunding the railroad fares of purchasers, and it will be possible for buyers, both retail and wholesale, to come in from points hundreds of miles distant and travel free without purchasing any extraordinary quantity of goods.

The main object of the trade excursions is to attract attention to El Paso as the great central market of this southwestern country, and to get the people of the Great Southwest into the El Paso habit. It is merely the beginning of an educational campaign that is sure to result in gain to the people of the southwestern communities, as well as to the merchants of El Paso.

The fact is, there has been too much a centrifugal tendency among the communities of the southwest. The people of west Texas and eastern New Mexico have formed the habit of going to Fort Worth, Dallas, and San Antonio, traveling many hundreds of miles further than they would have to go to reach El Paso; New Mexico travels to Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis, and Chicago; Arizona goes to the coast, to Los Angeles, and San Francisco, ignoring El Paso, the cheapest, best, and nearest market, all things considered; northern Mexico has long looked upon San Antonio, St. Louis, and New York as trading centers, though in many lines El Paso is better equipped to give quick and efficient service.

There need be no unpleasant rivalry in this matter among the cities and towns of the Great Southwest. El Paso really cannot help it that she is so favorably situated by nature and so strong with the railroads. El Paso is not to blame that her railroad rates are favorable, her stocks large, her facilities superior.

And the slogan of El Paso as a trade center has always been, "Buy in El Paso what you cannot buy in your home town."

That is good medicine. Buy in your home town whatever and whenever you can; but when you go outside, go to El Paso rather than to the far distant points, and thus do your part in promoting real reciprocity in trade. This broad principle is universally applicable.

Let the people of the Great Southwest, then, prepare to take advantage of what we have to offer, and then if El Paso*cannot keep up her end in competition with the big trading cities outside her 1200 mile circle that is our lookout. Tust give us a chance, friends and neighbors all.

Oh, look who's here! Mutt and Jeff are back from their vacation.

"The apostle of bunco," the "mountebank of American politics," have been applied to Col. Roosevelt by an English writer. One hates to think what that writer is going to be called when the colonel gets back home and takes up his pen.

Aviator Claude Graham White has challenged the navy to shoot at him in his airship in return for granting him the privilege of dropping bombs on a warship. It would be an unlucky Mr. Graham if they were suddenly to enlist a few members of the El Paso Rifle club in the navy and put them on guard the day he makes the flights.

Remember the Lean Years

HE idea of limiting the profits of railroads is all right in some cases, but you notice that nobody says anything about guaranteeing fair profits during all the weary years of building up the property and developing the country. If any plan of limiting profits be adopted, it ought to carry with it a cumulative provision, so that the total profits of lean years and fat years might be averaged over a considerable period during which the return on the investment should be something more than simple interest, so as to compensate for the risk assumed.

A writer in an exchange suggests that railroad franchises be treated somewhat like patents, with pretty broad guarantees for a limited period, after which the franchise value should revert to the people and the dividends limited to a fair income on capital actually invested. The suggestion is worth thinking over. The main point to keep in mind, however, is that the people who build railroads, especially in sparsely settled and undeveloped country, take heavy risks, and are entitled to proportionate returns.

The lean years must not be lost sight of when figuring up a fair profit. And in fixing rates, allowance should be made for ample upkeep, betterments and ex-

Excursion rates are so cheap that it is a shame to stay at home and worry the rest of the family these days.

A man who could recognize his wife, if she were suddenly thrust into some of these new fall hats, should have a medal.

It may not be worth anything at the bank, but most men would like an occasional word of encouragement or approval. It sometimes buys more from an employe than gold could do.

What Will the Majority Do?

TF THEY are going to save secretary Ballinger from the blow of an adverse report, the administration members of the investigating committee will have to cut short their vacations and attend the next meeting. Technically, no doubt the opponents of Ballinger have the advantage, for the point of no quorum was not raised during the proceedings and a majority of the committee members were present until several members withdrew with the deliberate intent of breaking the quorum. The rule is pretty well established in parliamentary law, thanks to speaker Reed and speaker Crisp, that members of a legislative body cannot deliberately break a quorum by refusing to answer rollcall. It is probable that a similar rule would be held to apply to the work of a responsible committee acting under formal instructions from a deliberative body.

In any event, the people of the country are not going to be satisfied with a dogfall. That investigation cost a mint of money, and now a thorough report participated in by the entire membership is due the people.

El Paso is a good place to stay, but you ought to make a trip out of town once in awhile just to meet other people and learn that there are others in the world really as great as yourself. You also get new ideas and incidentally help the railroads to pay dividends and keep the engineers and conductors and brakemen at work

T T NCLE WALT'S Denatured Poem

OHN MILTON, in his humble home, began to write a corking pome concerning Eden, and the way in which our parents went astray. And when he'd penned six lines or more, his wife came bustling to the door. She cried: Jack Milton, you're no good! You didn't bring me any wood, and you forgot to milk the cow, and there you sit a scribbling now!" The poor old hard dropped pen and ink, envinced that life is on the blink, and brought in wood and milked the cow; then, with a wet rag on his brow, his good old meerschaum pipe he stoked, and wrote eight lines that fairly smoked. And then his eldest daughter came, and said: "It is a POETRY doggone shame that I must wear back number lids, and canvas gloves when I want kids. There's Mandy Jenkins, lives next door;

she blew herself at Simpson's store for new spring gowns that beat the band; I've just the rags in which I stand. But then her father has some sense; he's selling patent barb wire fence, and has a bank account so large you couldn't pile it on a barge, while my old daddy spends his time in grinding out a bughouse rhyme." Poor Milton bought the girl a hat, then slammed the door and kicked the cat, and swallowed, in one long, fierce drink, a half pint flask of purple ink, Copyright, 1910, by George Macchews Adams.

Walk Mason

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

On When a Wife Is Wronged By Neglect

Copyright, 1910, by the New York Evening Journal Publishing Company.

66 T.TOW can a woman punish a husband who repays loyalty, devotion and affection with neglect and unfaithfulness?" asks an unhappy wife,

The sooner human beings and nations modify their ideas of punishment and increase their methods of prevention of wrongdoing the better for the

The human being who violates a principle must find his own punishment sooner or later if left to work out his destiny. Of course, the "danferous criminal must be restricted; but the people who have been wronged, and who cry for vengeance and ask for advice in concecting suitable punishments for the offender, are making more serious trouble for themselves unconsciously than any which another has brought upon them. It is a painful thing to be wronged and abused by one we love. It is a more terrible thing to wish harm, or suffering to any one. To be sorry the wrongdoer, to realize how absolutely he is destroying his own future development and cheating himself of the best happiness life can offer, and helping to change his course—that is the only attitude to take toward one who has wronged us. The moment we begin to plan a revenge we begin to

We harm ourselves, and commit mor al suicide, Just as sure as the sunset brings darkness, so surely the husband who wrongs and neglects a good wife meet with his punishment. He will suffer, and the longer the punishnent is delayed the more bitter it will

To save him from his own misdeeds should be a good woman's aim-not to purish him for his neglect of her-

It is much preferable to be the wronged one than the wrongdoer. The worst thing which can happen to a husband is to lose the love spect of a good wife. That alone will prove a lash to his soul as time goes

But the wife who wants to plan a revenge is not a good wife, for all re-venge belongs to the evil side of

Be worthy of love and respect and loyalty in mind and deed; be sorry for ord of 23 minutes and 1545 seconds; the man who does not realize your Miss Annette Kellermann the woman worth, but do not descend from your heights of noble womanhood to plot revenge. If you cannot live in atmosphere, and you are all that a wife and mother should be, the laws of society are formed to protect you and your children. Your fate is saddo not make it bad.

However skilled and strong art thou, However flerce is thy relentless

Tho' firm thy hand and strong thy · aim and straight Thy poisoned arrow leaves the bended to ask for guidance and direction in To pierce the target of my heart, ah! I am the master yet of my own fate,

Thou canst not rob me of my best Though fortune, fame and friends, yea love, should go, Not to the dust shall my true self be

Nor shall I meet thy worst assaults dismayed; When all things in the balance are

There is but one great danger in the

Thou caust not force my heart to wish thee ill-That is the only evil that can kill.

WHITE LIES The Herald's Daily Short Story By Paul Dalton.

hurled.

young man who was sitting at his easel. "Oh, Paul! Paul!" sne cried. "What do you think? I have got a position I begin tomorrow. Dubois laid aside his brush and looked at her. What do you mean, Helen, Dear?"

"If you think I am going to sit around idle, when we need money, you are mistaken. I have got a position as visiting governess to a nice little girl. am to get 20 francs a week, Paul. That will help us along nicely until those nasty art editors begin to appreciate your work." Paul's eyes grew misty as he kissed "But I can't allow you to work, Helen. We will find some way of managing it." "Now do be sensible, Paul," she begged, "the people seem to kind and the little girl took me right away. And really, it is not like work. I am just to walk with ner in the park. It will

"It is the principle of the thing, he said feeling like a lump in his throat. "It is the principle. idea of me, a big strong man, sitting here while you go out to work-"Stop, Paul,' she said and laid her hand acros his mouth, "we have disussed that subject before. Any common man can find work, that's easy nough. But you are a genius wao-

He laughed. "I am not so sure of being a genius any more, darling. I am afraid you are the only one to think so now. But suppose I must let you have your

The next morning she left with a happy smile, and after k.ssing Paul at least 10 times and telling him not to leave the easel where he was working paper boxes on a truck. on a design for a book cover that was to be finished that day.

threw ner arms around the neck of the editor, and his designs came back with ing slower than either the trudgeon, tidal current forced him to swim nearly great regularity. Fortunately, he had side or crawl. firm and sold a few illustrations to a second class magazine, which paid a miserable price for them. At least a dozen times he got up from his easel that day and stood staring out of the window. Of course, Helen's work wasn't hard, but it was not right that she should work at all. If he only had stayed at Rouen, but now he did not even have the money to go back there, and Helen had to work.

In the evening she came back, kissed him and began to make supper. "I have had a lovely day, Paul. The little girl is simply sweet. Her name is Marguerite. We have had a long walk in the park, and the day was over hefore I knew it. Did you miss me very much?

He laughed, rolled himself a cigaret, while she brough him a match and aft-erward when they had finished their simple meal, he began working once more, while she sat watching him with an expression of the tenderest love in her beautiful eyes.

The days passed, Helen left early, and work grew more and more hard to find, and what worried him most was that Helen began to grow thinner and paler, but when he said anything about it she just laughed and said there must be something the matter with his eyes.

One day Paul pushed his easel aside. He must find something else now. He support them both. He remembered a notice he had seen in the window of a factory, a short distance off. Without hesitation he went into the office, where a coarse looking manager asked him a few questions and a few ments later he found himself loading

His wages were to be 25 france a week. He came home a litle before Everything had changed so since they | Helen and when she came he exclaimed: ad come to Paris. At Rouen he had "I have got work now, Helen. I am on made plenty of money on a daily paper, 'L'illustration,' and I am sure I shall |

International Swimming Championship and Some Wonderful Records Made

diamond-studded gold one of unusually handsome design and there are many awarded for the minor events to be held in connection with the championship contest. The world's champion long dis tame woman swimmer is Miss Appette

Kellermann, an Australian girl, who is 1906 she swam 23 miles in 8 hours and

Some High Speed Records.

While women never have been able to acquire the speed in swimming that men

11 minutes

contestants for it. Other medals will be

AMERICANS LEAD THE WORLD

By Frederic J. Haskin

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 7.—The and 13 seconds, while for the breast scoond international world's stroke it is 2 minutes. The longest distance ever covered in a minute was 82 feet and 7 inches. The championship swimming race for women is being held at Coney Island today. The championship medal is a by Joey Nuttall of England. one of the best examples of a woman athlete the world affords. At Vienna in have, the records of some of the best female swimmers are better than can be made by the vast majority of men. Taking the records for men and women, it will be seen that the men have the advantage of the women by about 25 percent. C. M. Daniels, an American, holds the world's champ onship for 100 yards, having made the distance in the making of physically perfect men and women that Amherst college has established a $50,000 swimming 55 seconds; Miss J. Fletcher, an English; has woman, made the same distance in 74 pool, through the munificence of one of B. Kierman, an Australian, its ahunni, and has prescribed a com holds the record for 200 yards, having eovered that distance in 2 minutes and 13 2-5 seconds; Miss E. McCabe of Engand, made that distance in 2 minutes and 57 seconds. For a mile swim B. Kierman, the Australian, holds the rec champion, covered the same distance in 32 minutes and 44 seconds. America and Australia Lead. In the swimming world it woul! seem that America and Australia have a monopoly on the championship for men, while for women the bonors are divided fairly between the United States, Engin that direction. land and Australia. America holds all the world records for men up to and including 150 yards. Every one of these records has been set by a single swim-mer, C. M. Daniels, one of the foremost authorities of the world. Above that distance the championship departs from American shores and each record up to and including two miles, is held by Australia. With the exception of the 300, 400 and 1320 vard records, set b" Frank Beaupaire and W. Springfield, and the two mile record set by George Read, every swimming record has been made one man-B. Kierman. ords are for swimming pools and en-closed baths. In the open water, Australia holds all honors up to 889 yards, above which point the scenter of swimming power passes to England, where the greatest of all swimming feats, negotiating successfully the Enlish chan-nel, was accomplished. This feat, however, may be claimed justly by America, since Matthew Webb, who performed it, was of American birth. The Interesting Medley Race.

One of the most interesting races to be witnessed is the medley race, covering one and a half miles, where the contestants walk a quarter of a mile, run a quarter, use the bicytle another quarter, ride horseback another, row another make a success of it. You need not I am offered a regular position on work any more after today. She too. both als hands and instinctively he turned his face away. He was afraid she could see he was lving "How happy I feel, Paul," she cried.

"I knew right along you would succeed some day, but I will not stop working yet. Marguerite is so fond of me and I really could not leave her so suddenly. Her parents treat me as if I were their own child." Two more weeks passed. Paul was always home before Helen and always had a flower, some candy or other little trifle for her. She told about her experiences, that soe had been shopping, or buying toys for Marguerite and their nice walks, and while Paul told of his work and prospects. lied to her every day and the thought of what she would say when she found out, worried him more and more One day as he was loading boxes as usual, a girl came rushing down from one of the upper floors. "Have you got a handkercolef, she "One of the girls has got a bad cut in her hand."

He gave her a clean fresh ironed ur later he had forgotten about it. In the evening as he came home he found a letter and his fingers trembled when he saw it was from "L'illustra-He tore the envelope open and read: gulf. Your drawings are just the kind we fice tomorrow and oblige. Yours very truly, Henri Verlaine. He had barely finished reading the letter when he heard Helen coming. He ran to the door and waving the letter longest distance ever made under water was 106 yards, 2 feet. The side stroke in its present form was first introduced geon stroke was horrowed from the South American indians. E. C. Schae fer introduced it in the United States, while it remained for C. M. Daniels to perfect it. The crawl was borrowed from the indians of colombo, making its advent into the United States in 1904. This stroke is said to be the last word in swimming, and it is anticipated by swimming authorities that many records will be broken when this stroke reaches its highest perfection. Some swimmers are inclined to oppose all leg action in the water. Handy of Chicago, does all of his swimming with his hands, while the Cavill brothers of Australia, are inclined to follow his example. Swimming As An Exercise.

established a $50,000 swimming pulsory course as a part of its curriculum. During a recent season 34 young ing the swimming lessons, and it was found that they gained an average of eight pounds in weight and 23 inches in lung capacity. Philadelphia has made the teaching of swimming a part of the municipal service, while West Point and Annapolis place the art high in the list of necessary athletic training. Those who have proved its value in the development of a perfectly trained athlete, declare that there is no other kind of training that does as much They assert timt there is no kind of exercise that develops every muscle of the body so much and that there is no soreness in the muscles of the athlete who makes swimming a part of his training program.

The first claimant of a world championship in swimming was Dr. Bedale of London. In 1832 he issued a challenge of $500 a side, open to any man who was not more than a year older or five pounds heavier than himself, for best time over 30 miles in one tide, or the greatest distance in five hours on the Thames. On July 19 of that year, having received no acceptance of his challenge, he swam from London bridge to Red House, Battersea, in one red 35 minutes, with a head wind, swam back and proclaime! himself greatest of all great swimmers. In 1865 W. Wood was awarded the swimming clempionship in a race promoted by the London Swimming club, an organization which did much to build up an interna-Webb Swims English Channel.

It was in 1874 that Matthew Webb, an American, first announced his intention of swimming the English channel. His ambition was laughed at for awhile, but as he began to disclose his ability, it was believed that he had a chance of setting a record that no man had quarter, and swim a quarter. The recover attempted before. Several years ord for the medley race is 15 minutes passed before he was able finally to H ELEN came rushing into the little where they thought there was no work studio, breathless from running, like his. Here he found it almost impossible to get an interview with an inspect swimming, the breast stroke below that the peculiar in speed swimming, the breast stroke below that the peculiar in speed swimming, the breast stroke below that the peculiar in speed swimming that the peculiar that the peculiar in speed swimming the breast stroke below that the peculiar in speed swimming the breast stroke below that the peculiar record for the trud-150 miles in order to cover the 20 miles got a small order from an advertising geon stroke for 200 yards is 2 minutes between the English coast and the Tillustration' now and-

Everything seemed to turn blank before his eyes. Helen was standing in the full lights of the lamp now and bordered handkerchief.

Abe Martin

Nothin' kin be as utterly bum as a bum actor. 1.. high price o' meat don't cut any figure with cod fish aristocracy.

shore. Webb had honors and wealth heaped upon him, but in 1879 found himsef a poor man. He was glad enough to accept a proposition to enter a six-day swimming race. He won the race, with Beckwith as the third of the In 1881 he again was reduced to such financial straits that he was (Continued on Page 7)

Years Ago To-

Agent Darbyshire of the T. & P., is on a business trip to Dallas, Wilbur Townsend, a brotner of city attorney Townsend, has arrived from Albion, Ia., to locate. Mrs. Stanley Bevan has returned from a three weeks' visit with relatives in Indiana.

Rector Martin and wire have gone to Socorro, N. M., for a short visit. E. Behr is visiting friends in Silver City and attending to business Adjutant Beall, of Ft. Bliss, Mrs. Beall and daughter, Miss Lily, leave tonight for Fort Sam Houston. was pay day at the smelter yesterday and scraps were in order. Proussaly's Bonanza saloon till was robbed this morning. The thief also took the till. The money collected at the Juares custom house during August amounted to $112,722.02

Manuel E. Flores has been appointed secretary of the Republican county executive committee. A large crowd attended the federal building and county court house em-playes' ball game, which resulted in a score of 27 to 17 in favor of the cus-Alberto Vargas has been appointed district judge over the river. E-alderman George Look has been formally notified that he has been awarded the contract to bu and telegraph lines of the Corralitos road, and will give a $25,000 bond that he will do the work. The firemen's convention fund was increased $55 by a ball game, so that the fund now amounts to $137. The the full lights of the lamp now and S. S. Mendenhall, of Eddy, and F. around her hand was tied—his blue Moore have established a wagon guard at Stanton and Overland streets.

Galveston, September 8, 1900

From Speech in State Senate by R. V. Davidson, March 19, 1901.

heard the rear of that tempest. the window of my own house I looked pair. out upon the fury of those waves, breaking over housetops and sweeping the Orphans' Home of the Sisters of all before them.

"Morning came at last. It was the their hands still clasped the cross. Sabbath. The great church bells, accustomed to ring out the summons for that tragic scene? Not as when one is services were silent. No sound broke borne by weeping friends and laid could not bear to see Helen work to tlon," the magazine to which he had the solemn stillness; only the ceaseless gently and peacefully beneath flowers. sent a selection of his best drawings. throb of the clear, blue waters of the No priest pronounced the burial serv-contract with us kindly call at this of-

"Where once stood the happy home, He to where the Sabbuth has not end.

"Would that I had the power of streets strewn with bodies of loved language to describe the night of September 8. I lived through it and forgetfulness, stifling their own wild From emotions, seeking to calm those in des-

"Amid the cedars on the beach stood Charity. The world has heard the pa-"A strange, pale light shone from thetic story of these blessed women the heavens. I did not know or realize who consecrated their lives to their then that it was the pathway of light church. Upon the wreckstrewn shore handkerchief with a blue border which for many souls to that far distant they were found; lashed to them were Helen had given him in the morning- shore. the bodies of the children, and in death

"And the burial? Shall I touch upon ices. From the timbers their funeral "In the gray dawn we straggled into pyres were kindled. The smoke alone the streets and gazed aghast into each shrouded them, and around the sacred other's faces and clasped each other's ashes there rose a grander and more determined people.

[Ten years ago today nearly 10,000 there was nothing left to mark the persons lost their lives along the gulf spot-parent, child and friend tod gone coast of Texas, when a great wind carried the sea far inland and over-"God grant that I shall never sgalff whelmed Galveston and many other witness such a scere as that tropical towns; property valued at $50,000,000 "Helen! Helen! It is really true now, sun burst ipon a city of the dead, to $50,000,000 was destroyed.]

Thinks Men Take Love BEATRICE FAIRFAX

miration for Ella Wheeler Wilcox and her profound knowledge of the human heart; but I cannot agree with her that men die of wounded love, I do not, for one moment, deny that men are capable of great and lasting love, for they are. But they take love more philosophiclly than woman does. Take married people, for instance.

The husband goes off on a business He is busy and interested; he fainks of home very often, but it is of the home comforts he thinks, quite as much as his wife. He will be glad to get home; but, in the meantime, he is having a very good time, thank you and his every thought does not hinge on the moment of meeting. With the Wife, It's Different. With the wife, it is quite a different matter. She misses her husband, with a passion of longing, and, from the moment he leaves, she begins to get eady for his return. The home is turned upside down in preparation; his favorite dinner is prepared; her prettiest gown is donned, day he died, because I kno and then, with happy beating heart, she it is to live without him." awaits the coming of ner king.

Would any wife on her way home from a visit stop and shop? Woman's power of missing and longing is ten thousand times greater than Is it any wonder, then, that she is more apt than man to die of a broken heart?

Day and night she goes through the agony of missing; there is nothing to take her mind off her less. Personally, I know one dear woman who said to me some years after her husband's death:

"I am alive because I have three young children, and I have to live for sake. But I am half dead, and have been ever since that dreadful day, five years ago. Part of me went out three years' time he was very much of the world with him, and it has only alive to the charms of other women. been by sheer will that I have lived: I have made myself eat, and I have to forget, and to be consoled; it is a fought many times against the temptation to end my life. The ache in my heart is worse today than it was the suffered as women do. day he died, because I know, now, waat

The reason why man does not die of | physical organization makes her a prey not great love between the parents, the women."

Philosophically And the king probably stops at the heart-break is that there are always office or the club on his way uptown, plenty of women ready to help mend

> A hearf broken man is more interesting that a heart-broken woman. The man looks interesting and sad but his health does not suffer; whereas, the woman grieves until she loses health and looks. Men are afraid of her grief, and keep away from her, tears. Pride and reserve forbid that he should make a display of als grief, and, as he has to appear cheerful in public the habit soon grows upon him, and he is cheerful at all times.

The average man is by nature cheer-

I have known a man to lose his wife, and grieve for her desperately; but in I do not criticize man for als ability mercy that things are as they are, for it would be a very sad world if men in the heart of the woman.

Do Men Marry for Love? Women's more delicate nervous and ing better every day, and if there were to all emotions. She has, in some ways children born into the world be of a tainly has much less to distract her,

I do not at all agree with Mrs. Willrox's statement that more men, than woman, her interests center about her women, marry for love Man, being independent, has the power to marry to please himself, but and perhaps heart-break.

many times when he thinks he marries ful, and he has a healthy abhorrence of | for love |t is mere physical attraction which causes him to marry. And no man on earth ever died for love who married for that cause. Women undoubtedly do marry money, for position, for a home, for fear of being an old maid, and other sordid reasons-just as Mrs. Wilcox says-but the great majority of women marry for love, pure and simple. Mrs. Wilcox says tont eight marriages in every ten, in the civilized world, are based on some other platform than great, all compelling love The flat contradiction of that theory less self control than man; and she cer- | class to degrade rather than to lift it. The woman who does not deeply love and prevent her from brooding on her a man will not bear him a good child. There is no limit to the absorbing interests in a man's life, whereas, with small home circle. One broken link in that precious chain means heart-ache Taose who commit suicide, do not die of broken hearts; they die of disappointment. After a week's consideration, not one person in a hundred would commit suicide, through blighted love. The broken-hearted die a slow death; for hearts do not break easily. Of course, if there is any latent organic heart trouble, the shock of loss or grief, may kill, but that is dying of a weak heart-not of a broken one. The Chord That Spaps,

Loves the Better, Man

The dear Lord "who made and loves us all" put into the heart of woman one little pulsing chord that, once snapped, can never be renewed; and, when that happens, the world knows that some lies in the fact that the world is grow- woman has died of a broken heart. And with Kipling I say: "Many pity